FRIARS POINT, Miss., May 29.—This ing the county site of a rich county, could not do without a good newspaper to set prosperous little town is situated on the banks of the great Mississappi River, about half way between Memphis and Greenville, in the rich Coahoma County. The writer reached the town by taking the daily mail back at Coahoma Station, from which the distance is about seven miles. This gave me an opportunity to traverse a small part of one of the richest sections of agricultural country on the globe. The many large plantations on both sides of the road are well improved and in a fine state of cultivation. Cotton and corn, in spite of want of rain, have a fairly good stand. Everywhere activity was displayed. The shady old trees on both sides along the road offered a welcome protection from the rays of the sun. After an bour's drive we approached the town, which, when first visible in the distance, environed by shady groves, does not appear to be of great dimensions, but the nearer we came the larger and more attractive it grew, with its many fine and comfortable residences, its several church spires pointing heaven ward, and divers public buildings, broad streets, lined with shady trees, the levee running in front of the town, presenting to the inhabitants a most delightful prom enade, with a picturesque view of the Misrissippi River winding itself gracefully ground the point in its downward course. The town covers a large area, and the houses are, until you reach the center, Friars Point is universally considered as one of the healthiest towns in the Delta, and the general health is as good as any where in the United States. This is greatly attributable to its peculiar location on the river, which always allows a fine breeze, no matter how the weather or season. Another cause is that the drainage s fine, the soil being sandy loam, which drains rapidly and thoroughly. The town is about forty years old, has always been the county site, and society is remarkably good, while the people are noted for their conriesy and generosity and their hospi tality to strangers, who always meet with

The number of inhabitants is about 800. In years past it at one time was 1,500. The business done by the town was at one time enormous. For several rears it dropped off some, but has recently taken a new impetus, due to different causes, of which the principal one is that the Louisville, New Orleans & Texas Railway, in a few weeks, will pass through here, continuing the Bolivar Loop from Rosedale on. After passing Friats Point the road will go on to Coahoma, where it tape the main line, Several large contractors are already busily at work, om Rosedale on to Friars Point and from the people in the vicinity.

Canonia toward the same destination. The plantations in the county are all in Conhoma toward the same destination The manner in which the work is progressing under so many favorable auspices insures it as a certainty that trains will be running in ninety days. This road will plantations along the Missassippi River give Friars Point additional advantages of are those belonging to T. B. Hooker, E. Much honor and credit for getting the milroad here is due to Mr. D. A. Scott, a prominent attorney, who has been indefatigable in his efforts to defeat several counter efforts, and who finally

Mr. Scott has for years been the leading spirit in everything tending to benefit and advance the interests of Friars Point and of the county at large, and his fellow citizons greatly appreciate his course. He is a man of brains, spirit, energy and will power, and he would be a credit to any

This distinguished gentleman was formerly a resident of Friars Point, and he is much ommunity.

The advent of the railroad has at once appreciated by the people here. W. H. Dickerson, who also has large property in town, owns a number of fine plantations, called forth a general spirit of atir and enterprise. A bank with a capital stock of $50,000 is almost a certainty; soveral pro-posals have been received for the erection of an oil mill to be ready for this year's Elk Horn Place, his home place, and one of the finest and best improved plantations Real estate has at once come into demand; some sales have already been made and others negotiated for, by both home people and outsiders. I would here tivation. A striking feature of the Elk Horn Place is the magnificent gin house. It is very high, and from the top, which is run up into a tower, a large and beauti-ful landscape is presented to view. This state from personal knowledge that the people of Friars Point and vicinity are gin house is connected with a large cotton anxious for good settlers to come into their midst, and to any such they offer storehouse, nearly 200 feet away, by two parallel pipes, through one of which the seed-cotton is sucked to the gins, and ands or town lots or improved property at reasonable prices, different from some towns getting on a boom, which scare through the other the seed is blown back to the lower story of the same building, purchasers off by exorbitant prices. The to the lower story of the same building people here want good settlers; they do all by the same fan. The secret of this not want to speculate or create fictitious patents, and, furthermore, the town is not chine called the "Monarch Switch Cleanowned by a few, but property is in the hands of a large numof Friars Point. The staple is drawn into ber. The landing, with a good the machine by the exhauster and therein wharibent and warehouse, is about 300 thoroughly cleaned from sand, dust, and yards from the center of town, while the site of the depot is in a distance of 450 passing through the fan, increasing the yards. The town is well laid out, the value of trashy cotton from 2 to 5 cents streets wide and large, and as soon as the per pound. The air, after passing through railroad comes the streets will at once be the fan, receives the seed, which is inconstructed with gravel or plank and also new plank sidewalks laid, the railroad having offered to deliver gravel at cost. A house whence the cotton came. Mr. Wilsepacious shed for cotton and cotton seed son's invention deserves great praise and will also immediately be built near the the attention of all cotton planters, and it depot. Among the public buildings are a is undoubtedly destrued, while only o Catholic, a Methodist and a Baptist church a good schoolhouse, a very good and neat looking courthouse and a line new brick fall recently built and with all the latest improvements, a splendidly furnished spacious Masonie Hall, which is also used by the Knights of Pythias lodge. Cotton shipments average at least 10,000 bales per annum, the annual business $300,000 to $400,000, but a great deal more could be done if more capital was brought here. The merchants are noted for their integrity and financial good standing. For about five years no failures have occurred, and consequently the credit of the merchants is good and their custom much sought. As stated before, Friars Point is the county site of Coahoma County, and always has been. At different periods attempts have been made by other localities to have the county site removed, but the attempts have never been successful. Two years ago it was put to a popular vote, and Friars Point received a majority of votes over all other competing points com-bined. Now, that the railroad is a certainty, such a majority would become still stronger, but there is reason to sup-

CHICAGO, Ill., May 30 .- At 1 o'clock this afternoon the memorial monument erected by citizens in honor of the policemen who were killed by anarchist bombs in the Haymarket riot on May 4, 1886, was unveiled. The ceremonies were very simple, consisting of a presentation address by Mr. R. T. Crane, chairman of the Citizens' Committee; the ceremony of unveiling by Master Degan, son of Officer Matthias J. Degan, the first of the policethe county, but it should be well borne in mind that this edge is a long stretch of Mississippi River bank, which is lined men who died from the effects of the explosion; an address accepting the monument on behalf of the city by Mayor Creiger, and a historical address by Mr. F. Marianna, Ark., May 30.—This has been a gala day for the Knights Templar of Eastern Arkansas. Since the organization of Apollo Commandery at Forrest City, a little more than a year ago, it has grown most rapidly, being made up of Masons from Forrest City, Marianna, Jonesboro, Osceola and other points. The Commandery celebrated the Ascension of Christ today, and our city is crowded with the beauty and chivalry of Forrest City and the surrounding country.

Marianna is noted for the hospitality of her citizens, and on this occasion the Masons of every degree and their ladics spared no pains or expense to provide enertainment for their guests.

At 11 o'clock the passenger train arrived, oringing the visiting Sir Knights and their ladies, who were met at the depot by the Reception Committee and escorted to the beautiful grounds surrounding our Institute building. After a few minutes rest the following Sir Knights answered to their names: J. B. Cummins, G. P. Taylor, P. Brickey, P. D. McCulloch, E. A. McCulloch, T. A. Baxter, J. M. Daggett, W. J. Mathews, J. W. Mallory, C. L. Eggleston, R. L. Pettus, J. E. Leary, J. E. Stone, E. Purle, G. W. Cook, J. P. Dunham, J. P. Farrar, F. H. Govan, H. N. Hutton, T. H. Leety, P. E. Northern, T. A. Futrall, R. D. Griffis, S. L. Hampton, L. Rallwage, R. S. Deener, S. E. Johnson, W. P. Hall, C. H. Sanders and H S Underhill.

The lines being formed, they proceeded to the Methodist Church, where the services were held. The prelate met the proession at the door and conducted three chief officers to seats on the right of he pulpit, the colors of the Commandery being displayed on the left. The Sir Knights filed in and occupied pews re-served for them in the middle tier, while recessional hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," was being sung. Mr. B. M. Barrington led the choir and presided at the organ with a master's hand. The service was beautiful, impressive and instructive. After the exercises at the church all returned to the grounds around the institute and the Masonic lodge, where refreshments were spread and fully enjoyed by all present,

THE SERMON. Of the sermon preached by the Rev. R. S. Deener, pastor of the Methodist Church, it is difficult to speak. It was a grand occasion, and it is enough to say that the young divine fully sustained his reputation as one of the finest pulpit orators and one of the ablest young ministers in the Meth-odist Episcopal Church South. The following is a synopsis of the sermon:

Text, Luke xxiv., 50-51:

Symbols are the speech of God. Through them eternity looks down into time, the infinite holds communion with the fluite, the divine with the human. Especialty in the infancy of the race, when metaphysical truth pent up in the heart of man could find no spoken language to convey its meaning, did the mind seek to express itself through symbols. How must the souls of Egyptian and Chaldean magi have brilled with rapture as wave after wave of hought thus rolled agress their minds. How the immortal fires must have burned within as flash after flash of truth darted through these symbols into their souls, revesting the grand ideas of God, eternity and in the glowing symbols interwoven into every page of ancient Eastern philos-ophy. The passing restless multitude saw nothing more in them than the ancients saw in the riddle of the Sphinx, but to a responsive soul every symbol seemed ready to bend and break with the burden of a special revelation. It was this ad-vanced state of mind, which moved in a purer atmosphere of thought unappreciated by the crowd, that gave rise organization of Masonry for the transmis-sion and preservation of these truths destined to open up a higher civilization.

But the voice of symbolism is hushed, We have wandered through its mazes; we have looked upon its beauties and contemplated its glories. Today we stand in the clear sunlight of prophecy fulfilled, of the realization of nations' hopes; and, as we look back over the pathway we have come, we still see the rainbow of hope spanning every vale and crowning every It glitters in God's eternal sunlight dispels the darkness as the day the night, and beckens the weary "entered appren-tice" and "fellow craft" higher and still higher, until he stands upon the Mount of Olives and gazes speechless upon the inished work of the world's Redeemer.

We come not today, however, to speak of signs and symbols. We come not to shed tears over patron saints or to strew Amaranthine flowers on the graves of the world's illustrious martyrs. But we come o pay humble homage to Jesus Christ, the Son of God; to notice the beginning and the end of a life transcendently beau tiful, powerful and glorious.

Let us attend then to the evidences of Christ's work while on earth, and the whole range of attestation to the Divinity of his claims, as had manifest in the flesh The phenomena attendant upon his birth, the presence of the star-guided magi and the outburst of celestial harmony from heavenly visitants, proclaimed Him the long wished and now welcome deliverer who had been the great theme of primeval proyhecy. His omniscient discernment as a child in the confutation of the doctors as a child in the constant of the doctors of the temple, the vonching the divinity of of his mission at his baptism, the foiling the sagacity of hell in the defeat of his sovereign on the mount of temptation, the miraculous convention of water into wine at Cana of tialilee, the teaching of the mother of Peter's wife that disease and death obey his roles, the healing of the nobleman's son, the walking upon the surging roll of the agitated Tiberius, stilling the stormy wave of the sea of Galilee, the multiplication of broad and flesh in the hadd of the case, the raising of his friend, Lazarus, after being four days dead, the at the end beaming effulgate of his Deity that the mill, shone resplendent on the Mount of Transshone resplendent on the Mount of Trans-figuration, his triumphani entry into Jeru-salem amid the acclamations of the multi-tude, his breaking the bars of death and hell and triumphantly rising from the dead, all these, and more, proclaimed the divinity of our Christ, the dignity of the sufferer and the grandeur of the sacri-but leaving the grave in deliberate triumph, He led "captivity captive" and victoriously dragged to His chariot wheels the conquered millions of death and hell. And when He ascended in jubilant pomp through the immeasurable concave of the heavens, had earth possessed immortal heavens, had earth possessed immortal ears she might have heard His princely heralds surprise the waiting thrones of eternity with the voice of thunder—"lift eternity with the voice of thunder—"lift up your heads, O ye gates! and be ye lift up ye everlasting doors, and the King of glory shall come in." Earth cries aloud: "Who is the King of glory?" and heaven's eternal echoes reply: "Earth has crucified Him, the Lord of hosts, He is the King of glory." Such was the regal triumph, the stupendous inauguration of the Son of God. And thus in His militant and glori-fied states and relations, the peculiar and fied states and relations, the peculiar and exclusive designations of Godhead belong to Jesus Christ, and acts and works distinctive of Deity are ascribed to Him.

Notice the extent of His regal dominion and will over His people. His scepter comprehends "all power in heaven and in earth." His is a universal sovereignty. It is an investiture involving an entireness of right and amplitude of power, without limit and without control. His claim upon the faith and obedience of the wor... is twofold, He made us and afterward re-deemed us. As "God over all" His right to rule is inherent, and He has a derived right in view of His Messiahship and bedience unto death. His is the covenant of redemption first announced in Paradise, enlarged upon with Abraham, further unfolded at Sinai, illustrated by prophets and finally perfected in His work upon earth. The principles, the interests the bearings and the results, of truth and plety, these constitute Messiah's empire upon earth, and from his throne in heaven, he will assert and defend, main-tain and extend it.

Notice the triumphs of Christ over His enemies and the salvation of His people.

Those men and associations of men who counteract the general good of his sub-jects and the welfare of his administration, have been defeated or destroyed in all ages. His enemies of antediluvian mem-ory, the confederation of kings headed by Chedorlaemer, Sodom, Tyre, Babylon, Ninevah, Jerusalem and Rome; Herod, Pilate, Julian, Valerius, and the principal etors in the Neronian and Dioclesian persecutions; the first grand Italian apostasy and the Arabian imposture; the insane fansticism of infidelity in France and the imposture of Mecca. The end of these furnish warnings to the children of men forever; for, under whatever severity of trial, Christ and His followers have ever been and will always be triumphant. As

He ascended so shall we ascend to heaver. What have we to fear, though chaos is self should be seen reveling amid the ruins of demolished worlds, and Time's last storm howling to its close shall wail the death dirge of their passing away? When, amid it all, the affection of our Christ is still seen curling around the eternal columns of their strength? Christian soldiers, heralds of the cross, what need we care, although on earth we were so poor we had no nurse or pillow; so few and trod-den down we had no strength, and hamlets, tents and grottoes were the places we wept and prayed, if these are to be exchanged for the companionship of angels, the presence of God, and the re-sources of the universe in the heavenly

What though soiled by the dust of toil, struggling in tattered want along our lone and periled path, when even here we find ourselves invested with glory in the night of our being, and sustained by Hope, guiding and pointing us to the temple hymn and the heavenly harp above, where the unfolding apocalypse of heaven's eter-nal grandeur and loveliness shall introduceus to new beings and new worlds?

Took Off His Under Lip.

Eight years ago a cancer came on my lower lip. I had it cut out while it was yet small, and it healed up apparently, but soon broke out again, and commenced eating very rapidly. It took off my under lip from one side to the other and down to my chin. I had it treated by burning, and immortality. Such thoughts must and got so weak that I did not think the tind expression, and their utterance is I could stand it much longer. After much suffering I discarded all other tree ment and began taking Swift's Specific, and the cancer soon began to heal, and in a short time it was completely healed and I was entirely well. It is now over three years since I got well, and there has been no sign of any return of the disease. I know it was cancer, and I know it was cured alone by S. S. S. E. V. FERRAND, Ruston, La.

S. S. S. cured me of malignant sore throat and mouth caused by impure blood. The trouble extended down to my left lung, which was very sore. The doctors practiced on me for three years without relief, when I left them and took S. S. S. Four bottles cured me.

Rich, Poor, Clean, Dirty, White, Black-All need PEARLINE. No one istoo poor to use it. It's the modern soap-Economical-Harmless-Effective. Reduces the labor, time and drudgery of washing and cleaning onehalf; besides gives better results; takes out what soap will not; and, in doing away with most of the rubbing, saves the worst of the wear and tear-your clothes are ruined more by washing than wearing. Among your friends are those who use it-they will confirm the above. JAMES PYLE, New York.
